Promoting Community participation and Awareness

Objective:

To raise self-driven young people who can serve the society in all spheres of life. Over the course of the session, students are engaged in a variety of activities such as Cleanliness Drive in the community, Plantation Drive, Blood Donation Camps, helping the District Administration, Interaction and Awareness visits to identify and resolve various community issues like visit to special schools.

Context:

The college has worked to help students instil in them values of Social Service and coexistence. NCC, NSS, Rover and Rangers, Red Ribbon Club and Department of Education aim to explore the full potential of the youth, be it physical, intellectual, social or spiritual. Through a variety of activities, interaction and social service programmes, students get a chance to grow holistically.

In addition to this, efforts have been made to provide

Financial Assistance to students through a contributory fund (mainly contributed by the staff of the college voluntarily) and scholarships at college level to help socio-economically backward students.

Practice:

The students enrolled in different clubs, societies and departments are provided with a platform to engage in diverse activities to foster students' awareness and nationalistic sentiments while inspiring them in different ways through activities by NSS, NCC and rovers and Rangers and other departments.

Challenges:

1. Providing sufficient facilities, training areas and equipment for operations of NCC Air Wing is challenging on college property with financial and logistical problems due to ongoing infrastructure development activities.
2. Sometimes it is difficult to make sure that faculty and staff members are available to assist such activities because of their involvement in other curricular and management activities.
3. Achieving a balance between such activities, academic responsibilities while ensuring that these units contribute to students overall educational experiences is sometimes challenging.
4. Sometimes students do not show interest in these activities. There is an increasing reluctance on the part of young college students to participate in these activities.

5. Despite repeated advertisements at college level regarding the financial assistance being provided by the college to needy students, some students still remain unaware and do not get benefitted from the schemes.
